2. [REDACTED] of the WH Contingency Task Force met with C/A&E on 2 February for the purpose of discussing psychological assessment support to their projects. [REDACTED] explained that [REDACTED] naming people by name who should be participating in this project and that he had specifically requested ADTR for approval of C/A&E's involvement. The assessments will be limited to a few persons at the beginning of the project. It is anticipated that the first assessment will be some time immediately after 14 February. The location of the assessment is not yet known. It is planned that [REDACTED] will accompany C/A&E on the first few assessments. After that time it is hoped that we will be able to rotate our Assessment Staff to the support of this project in the same way we did previously with the WH [REDACTED] activities.

3. On 31 January [REDACTED] and C/A&E visited [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] in their office at the [REDACTED] in Washington. The proposal for a motivation survey and questionnaire developed for that purpose by the A&E Staff was discussed with these gentlemen. They gave us the benefit of their ideas on how such a survey should be conducted and how to construct certain questionnaire ideas. [REDACTED] in response to my inquiry, stated that there would be no charge for this service. In the event that the Office of Personnel is interested in the views of these individuals, it is possible that we will ask [REDACTED] to meet with members of the Office of Personnel at a later date.

5. As reported previously (Weekly Report #44, dated 14 December 1961), there was a 70% increase during November, as compared with November 1960, in the number of individuals to whom PATB was administered in the field. This substantial increase has continued, with 147 persons tested in December (a 75% increase) and 100 persons tested in January (a 104% increase). As in November, the increase does not represent any increase in JOT applicants but is accounted for exclusively by candidates for other Agency assignments.
